Courses I Want to Take and Why

- HONORS 391- Health Seminar with Clarence Spigner or any course by Clarence Spigner
    - Unfortunately the course cannot fit with my schedule for next quarter when it is being offered but hopefully it is offered again! I read up on Professor Spigner and I think that I would really enjoy the experience of his class based on his background and his interests. I also want to take some type of [global] health course or more than one through the Honors program. I know it would be intensely stimulating.
- POLS 407- International Conflict with Jonathan Mercer
    - I have taken a course with Mercer before and I enjoyed it very much. Not only does this course sound crazy interesting to me, it would go towards my Political Science Minor and it has been recommended to me by friends.
- SIS 456- State Relations in Third World Countries with Mary Callahan
    - Professor Callahan lectured to me in a class once, and I loved her passion. She was this lovely lady with passions in all the same areas as myself. If I can gain one thing from all my education it would be to understand why there are "developed" and "developing" nations? Why does it seem like there will always be "developing" nations. Any course that helps in understanding state relations in these "third world" countries would be a pivotal moment of my education/ life. In addition this course would go towards my major core and track requirements as well as my PolS minor. So it's a no-brainer,
